

Sales Analyst

Unique opportunity to work directly for Company's CEO as right-hand man/woman with specific focus on B2B enterprise direct sales. CEO is primary salesperson for rapidly growing company (24 people) and needs a protégé. Successful candidate will learn all the ropes of enterprise (solution) selling, the Information Governance industry, entrepreneurship and much more. Expectation is that within 2-3 years, this role will be managing a team of similarly, young, new sales analysts, as well as running strategic account programs for the Company. Experienced CEO is seeking an entry-level "mini me."

Company is a leading provider of AutoClassification and document data mining products and services in the Information Governance, eDiscovery and Records Management markets. We set the gold standard for large-scale information analysis, organization and control through our award-winning products. Company is an established leader in its market and well-known for innovative, efficient technology. Job is located in Billerica, MA.

Responsibilities

- Begin/continue dialog with interested prospects who've asked for info, requested a call, downloaded a white paper, or interacted with the Company and brand in some way
- Schedule presentations and demos with interested parties for a Subject Matter Expert (SME) to present. In time, perform those presentations yourself.
- Evaluate marketing program performance. How did our email fare? How many attended our webinar? Who are they and what level of engagement?
- Assist at networking and prospecting at industry events.
- Assist in creating proposals, responding to RFPs, building pricing models, assembling references, and other common tasks for responding to opportunities
- Act as back-up lead sales person when CEO is unavailable
- Help design, create and manage Valora University – a comprehensive training program for end-users, technical implementers and channel partners.

Requirements

- Must be college graduate from top tier university. Must have outstanding GPA (3.5+), which shows commitment to learning and the ability to excel in a structured environment
- 0-2 years experience in business, economics, marketing, sales, or project/services delivery. New college grads ok!
- Excellent written and verbal communication skills. No grammar or vocabulary issues. Able to communicate effectively and convincingly in a business/professional setting.
- Strong math skills, including Excel. Our pricing can be complicated and requires a strong knowledge of formulas, discounting, pro forma modeling, and similar.
- A "quick study" type of person. CEO is very busy (& overwhelmed with rapid growth) and needs someone who can learn quickly, who is not afraid to ask questions, and is a self-starter.
- Warm, engaging personality – the kind of person who puts people at ease and can talk or listen as the situation demands.

- Technically literate. Comfortable with social media, analytics, and B2B software.
- Professional, intelligent, well-poised demeanor and style.
- Self motivated and takes pride in their work, strong follow-up skills
- Must be detail-oriented and able to work well individually and as part of a team, handle pressure and tight deadlines. A strong ability to prioritize and “figure it out.”
- US citizen and Native English speaker
- Some travel required (< 20%)

Compensation

- Salary based on experience
- Eligible for performance-based bonus
